

Bryan J. Wolfe
Vice President of International Trade
Ascena Retail Group, Inc.

Based in New York City, Bryan is the Vice President of International Trade for Ascena Retail Group, Inc., the parent company of brands Ann Taylor, LOFT, Lou & Grey, Lane Bryant, and Justice. His responsibilities are focused on Customs/Trade compliance for the US and Canada, global supply chain security, and government relations for the advancement of preferential trade programs.

Bryan has more than 25 years of customs compliance, logistics, and supply chain security experience working in management and/or executive level positions. Prior to joining Ascena (Ann Inc.) in March 2012, he was the Vice President of Corporate Logistics for FullBeauty Brands (formerly Redcats USA)—a multi-channel, home shopping retailer—responsible for day-to-day leadership of inbound and outbound logistics, customs compliance, and supply chain security programs for the company’s Fashion and Home Lifestyles brands in Indiana. Previous apparel industry experience also includes long tenures with Russell Corporation in Atlanta, and Antigua Sportswear in Phoenix.

A graduate of Arizona State University, Bryan has been a Licensed Customs Broker since 1997, and also holds a Professional Certificate in Logistics from The Supply Chain Institute at Georgia Tech. He is currently the Chairman of the Government Relations Committee of the American Apparel and Footwear Association (AAFA), as well as a past member of the Mailers Technical Advisory Committee (MTAC) for the U.S. Postal Service.

Bryan, his wife Priscilla, and their daughter currently reside in Atlantic Highlands, NJ.
